give the owner of the list options to choose what they want to fill out. Whatever they don't fill out will not show up like: hobbies & interests: None specified this is originally a field of "gift preferences" but to keep it safe, an option to request mailing address is more appropriate and respects

• Request Mailing

Flow of Address: privacy   XYZ responds   → ABC mails w/ address   package

click "request..." → sends the owner an email/notification that ABC is requesting in a chat feature on the website

                          OR
                     sends email as ABC to XYZ so XYZ can reply via email directly

Another option is to link the gift preferences list somewhere more noticeable.
Right now it is on the left side bar
